The Akron Art Museum, closed for construction until July 2007, is expanding to meet the growing public response to its programming and to provide a wider range of offerings for a diverse audience. When it opens in July 2007, the new Coop Himmelb(l)au-designed building will transform downtown Akron's landscape with its striking and innovative design.

The museum's collection includes some 3400 regional, national, and international art objects from 1850 to the present, with particular emphasis on painting, sculpture, and photography. Particular areas of strength include American painting and sculpture since 1960, 20th-century American and international photography, and American impressionist and tonalist paintings.

Since its founding in 1917, the Allen Memorial Art Museum has been a major educational and cultural asset of Oberlin College and northeast Ohio. The collection is housed in an impressive Italian Renaissance-style building designed by Cass Gilbert. In 1977, Venturi, Scott Brown & Associates designed an addition that represents one of the earliest and finest examples of postmodern architecture in the United States. The AMAM has an outstanding collection that provides a comprehensive overview of art from a variety of cultures. Major holdings include European and American art, including paintings, prints and sculpture by Rubens, Turner, Picasso, Monet, Cézanne, Renoir, Rodin, Matisse, Miró, Modigliani and Mondrian.

Since opening its doors in 1916, the Cleveland Museum of Art has served as one of the world's most distinguished art museums and one of Ohio's principal civic and cultural attractions. Located in Cleveland's University Circle, the museum stands as the visual centerpiece of a highly concentrated campus of museums, performing arts facilities, and medical and educational institutions. The museum is regarded worldwide for the superb quality of its comprehensive collection—from its Egyptian galleries to its acclaimed Armor Court, from renowned old master paintings to Impressionist masterpieces. Its Asian and Art of the Americas collections are among the finest in the world.

During the museum's renovation and expansion, much of its permanent collection will be closed through autumn 2007. Programs continue throughout the community during this time, with the museum reopening for special exhibitions beginning October 15, 2006. Visit the CMA website for further details on upcoming exhibitions; some require paid admission.
